

The 2009 Milking Systems Seminar will address concerns that face dairy industry representatives and dairy producers during this period of low milk prices. Topics will address milk quality, dry cow treatments, improving parlor performance and cleaning equipment. The use of energy audits to direct current and future purchases to improve energy efficiency and save costs will also be addressed.

This meeting will provide you with a great opportunity to hear from University specialists, industry professionals, and local agents on timely topics to help improve milking performance and produce high quality milk.
