

Conference Overview

Friday, March 10, 2006
Lakewoods Resort, Cable, Wisconsin
Conference Fee: $25

This day-long conference will focus on what works using an evidence based practices approach for more effective criminal justice programs. Conference attendees will learn how to utilize this approach in selecting, developing and implementing criminal justice programs with a proven record of success; including how to apply it to reduce the number of repeat alcohol and drug related offenders. Participants will also learn about prevention programs that work targeting youth and families. In addition, perspectives on the role of states in local criminal justice programs will be provided by the Wisconsin Department of Corrections Secretary and a former Minnesota Department of Corrections Deputy Commissioner. An expert panel will share information on available criminal justice resources from higher levels of government. Lastly, conference participants will learn how to conduct program evaluations to determine if a criminal justice program is working.

Who Should Attend?

The intended audience for the conference includes: county supervisors, county administrators, judges, district attorneys, sheriffs, chief deputies, jail administrators, clerks of court, criminal justice program administrators, victim witness coordinators, human services department directors, probation & parole agents, public defenders, attorneys, city and tribal police chiefs, mayors, tribal chairs, city administrators, substance abuse counselors, school administrators and UW-Extension educators.
