

Acknowledgements

Many people contributed to the Southwest Wisconsin Youth Survey. They realized the need and value of current local data on positive forces and risk behaviors affecting youth.

Special thanks to the teachers who cooperated in the administration of the survey, the parents who allowed their children to participate and the 3,727 students who gave their thoughtful responses. The school coordinators need to be recognized for the hours spent designing the survey, and gathering input from students, teachers, administrators, and parents. Their efforts also include coordinating the administration of the youth survey in the school and serving as contact people for the program. The school coordinators are:
