

LIFE in Wood County 2003

www.woodcountyassetsurvey.com

Peter Manley, Wood County Extension Resource Agent

A 90+page report about Wood County has recently been completed. It is available at the above web site. Printed copies will soon be available.

Community leaders began to pursue this project in the spring of 2002. We researched other reports, raised funds and developed a team to gather information.

The result is a report on the strengths and attributes of Wood County in ten indicator areas: work, leisure, school, health, natural environment, children and families, seniors, housing, public safety, civics and diversity.

Although lengthy, the report is easy to read. Over 80 different indicators are covered, but there is only one page per indicator. Indicators range from business growth to high school graduation rates to air quality to senior transportation to solved crimes.

If you want to learn about Wood County, read LIFE in Wood County, 2003. Contact Peter Manley at the Extension Office to look at a preview copy.