WHAT PEOPLE SAY ABOUT THIS TRAINING...

Very solid information that will be very helpful in my work!

Everything that was discussed I will take back with me to my job and use.

This training gives a very solid foundation for home visitor programs.

This is a wonderful training for home visitors from any background.

It was really inspiring.

WHAT YOU WILL LEARN...

This training is based on the Cornell Family Empowerment curriculum, the Home Visitation Developmental Assessment Scale, and best practices in the field. You will learn both theory and skills.

- Family Systems and Family Development. What is the Family Development Approach? Learn about the empowerment model. Discuss different family types, their strengths and challenges, and how to identify those strengths. Find out what happens when a home visitor enters a family system. Discover the skills and abilities needed by home visitors to be successful with families.
- Building Social Support. Learn how social support affects parenting competency, techniques for assessing social support, and how to use the Family Development Approach to affect social support.
- Communicating with Empathy. Home visitors need exceptional communication skills. Learn strategies for active listening, what to do when "I" messages don't work, how to use "I" messages to talk about "hot topics" with families, and communication tips that really work.
- Planning with Families Using A Family Development Approach. How do empowerment-oriented and deficit-oriented assessment differ? Learn the six principles of empowerment-based assessment and practice goal-setting and planning with families.
- Being Professional. Providing services in the home raises unique issues. Discuss confidentiality, personal safety, and setting boundaries. Learn about resources that will help families reach their goals.

Professional Development Core Competencies #2-8 are addressed
