

Grandparents Caring for Grandchildren

Changing roles for grandparents

A single, low-income 52-year-old woman with chronic health problems has cared for her grandchildren for five years—ever since her daughter lost custody of her kids due to drug addiction and subsequent incarceration.

After their daughter's divorce, a couple in their seventies became responsible for their 14-year-old grandson. Since they do not have legal custody, they are unable to make important school and health-related decisions for their grandchild even though he lives with them.

Why do grandparents become caregivers?

Increasingly, grandparents are taking care of their grandchildren. Across the country, more than 2.4 million grandparents are the primary caregivers of grandchildren living with them.¹ Grandparent caregivers fall into three groups: those with legal custody; those who provide food and shelter but have no legal rights; and those who provide daily care but don't have parental responsibilities.²

Relatives step in when, for whatever reason, parents can no longer care for a child. This happens because of substance abuse, incarceration, family violence, child abuse or neglect, HIV/AIDS, a parent's death, divorce, financial problems, mental health issues, poverty and unemployment.³

The figures that follow provide information on the race and ages of children living with grandparents (figures 1 and 2), and the age and sex of caregiving grandparents (figures 3 and 4). It also highlights the fact that children living with grandparents are more likely to be living at the poverty level (figure 5).

Figure 1. Race of children living in Wisconsin with grandparent-maintained families—no parent present.

Figure 2. Ages of children in grandparent-maintained families with no parent present

Figure 3. Age of caregiving grandparents

Figure 4. Sex of caregiving grandparents

Figure 5. Comparison of children living in poverty in Wisconsin.

Here are some facts you may not know about grandparent caregivers:

- White children make up the highest percentage of children living in grandparent-headed households.⁴
- Women make up almost two-thirds (63 percent) of grandparent caregivers, with grandmother-headed households more likely to live in poverty.⁵
- Black children are more likely than other ethnic groups to live with only one grandparent, usually a grandmother.⁶
- More than a fourth (27 percent) of the children cared for by grandparents live in poverty compared to children living with their parents (19 percent).⁷
- Grandparents care for children of all ages, with a majority (73 percent) of the children older than 6.⁸
- Grandparent caregivers range from 30 to 90-plus years old, with the highest percentage between 50 and 59.⁹

What caregiving costs grandparents

Even if grandparents are financially stable, they may become financially strained when caring for grandchildren. Family income for about half (51 percent) of grandparent caregivers is less than $30,000 a year.¹⁰ Even those who are not poor may find it hard to meet their grandchildren’s financial needs (figure 6).

Despite financial hardships, grandparent caregivers often do not take advantage of community services.¹¹ Reasons for this vary. They may not know about community resources, may feel uncomfortable seeking help or may associate a stigma with receiving public assistance.¹² Child welfare workers sometimes mistakenly deny benefits to grandparents because they are not aware the grandparents are eligible for financial support.¹³ Whether grandparents have legal custody can affect their eligibility for government benefits as well as their ability to get medical care and insurance for their grandchildren.

Caregivers face physical and emotional upheaval

Grandparents raising grandchildren tend to have more health problems than other grandparents. In general, single grandmothers and those in poverty are more likely to have health problems than married grandmothers and those above the poverty line.¹⁴ More than half (54 percent) the children in grandparent-headed households live with a caregiver in fair or poor health or who has a limiting condition.¹⁵ What’s more, caregiving grandmothers are almost twice as likely to suffer from depression as other grandmothers.¹⁶

For grandparents, becoming a parent again can create stress.¹⁷ Caregivers have less time for themselves and may feel lonely and isolated from friends who are in the empty-nest stage of life and whose schedules and social life no longer match their own.¹⁸ They may experience grief, guilt, anger, resentment and embarrassment, and may grieve the loss of the usual grandparent role as well as lost dreams for their children’s future.¹⁹

In addition, grandparents have basic parenting concerns. They need to know how to respond to a grandchild’s feelings of loss, rejection, guilt, anger, embarrassment, divided loyalties and attachment.

Custodial grandparents report more behavior problems than traditional grandparents.²⁰ Children whose mothers were substance abusers have higher rates of developmental disabilities, creating additional problems for grandparent caregivers.²¹

Figure 6. Family income for grandparents—no parent present.

How does St. Croix County fare?

Across the country, the number of grandchildren living with grandparents, with no parent in the household, has grown 51 percent from 1990 to 2003, from 935,000 to 1.42 million.²²

The following county data can help community leaders address the needs of grandparent caregivers and let caregivers know they are not alone. In Wisconsin, 55,983 grandparents live in households with one or more grandchildren younger than 18. A parent or parents may also live in these households. However, 23,687 Wisconsin grandparents (42 percent) are their grandchildren’s primary caregivers, providing food, shelter, clothing and day care, and sometimes making sure medical and schooling needs are met.

Some children live in households headed by other relatives such as aunts, uncles or siblings over 18. Census data on grandparents raising grandchildren for communities within a Wisconsin county can be found at www.uwex.edu/ces/flpgrp/map/grgcensusmap.html.

Grandparents caring for grandchildren in St. Croix County

| | St. Croix County | Wisconsin | % in Wisconsin | % in St. Croix County |
|---|------------------|--------------|----------------|-----------------------|
| Total children under 18 | 17,617 | 1.37 million | 26% | 28% |
| Total children living with relatives, including grandparents | 393 | 61,165 | 4.5% | 2.2% |
| Total grandparents living with children under 18 | 513 | 55,983 | — | — |
| Total grandparents living with grandchildren and responsible for their care | 127 | 23,687 | 42% | 25% |

Source: Simmons, T. & Dye, J.L. (2003). Grandparents Living with Grandchildren: 2000. Population figures based on 2000 U.S. Census data.

Caregiving often lasts five or more years

Grandparents generally do not know how long they will provide care. They often think it will be for a short time, yet a high percentage provide care for five or more years.

Grandparents who are black, Pacific Islander, American Indian or Alaskan native are more likely to have cared for their grandchildren for five years or more compared to Asian, Hispanic or white grandparents.²³

Length of time grandparents are responsible for grandchildren

Grandparents find joy in caregiving

Despite challenges, grandparents say raising grandchildren brings them joy and purpose.²⁴ Benefits include enjoying their grandchild’s love and affection, having the chance to raise a child differently from the way they raised the middle generation, and being able to nurture and maintain family relationships.²⁵

Grandchildren also experience benefits, including having a more stable home environment, adjusting with fewer traumas compared to placement with strangers, and being able to maintain family contacts.²⁶

How can you help?

Communities can support grandparent caregivers in many ways.

Individuals can:

- Volunteer to help grandparent caregivers through community centers, churches, neighborhood support groups and other organizations.
- Offer companionship and support to grandparent caregivers, help them network with other family caregivers, and put them in touch with social service agencies that can offer additional services and benefits.

Agencies can:

- Recognize that grandparents face many barriers that keep them from getting professional help, including limited finances, physical disability, lack of child care, unreliable transportation and negative experiences with human service agencies.
- Offer support groups, resources, referrals and emotional support to grandparent caregivers. Provide education on the legal, financial, parenting and personal challenges facing grandparent-headed families to professionals, community leaders and others, via workshops, classes, newsletters, web sites and other technology.
- When counseling grandparents, provide a safe environment, work around last-minute schedule changes, take time to explain programs and services, and reach out to connect caregivers with other services.
- Discuss the larger family, especially the middle generation, and its impact on grandparents and grandchildren.

Communities can:

- Recognize grandparent-headed families as an important—and growing—family structure, and communicate respect for the family’s strengths.
- Find ways to involve grandparent caregivers in the community through support groups, networks, coalitions, advisory groups and educational efforts.
- Honor the traditions, expectations and experiences of families. Cultural differences enrich the community.

Community resources for family caregivers

Grandparent caregivers have access to information, educational programs and services through many community and web-based resources. If you don't have a computer, try your local library. Most libraries have a free computer with Internet access. Start with these:

- AARP is a national organization for people age 50 and over with state and local chapters. Its "Grandparent Information Center" offers information and referral to support groups and legal services. AARP also offers a newsletter and other publications, some of which are in Spanish.
www.aarp.org/families/grandparents/gic
- Generations United is the only national organization focusing solely on promoting intergenerational strategies, policies and programs. Their "State Fact Sheets" offers state-specific information on programs and policies.
www.gu.org
- County and tribal aging offices answer questions about needs, services and opportunities for older adults who are relative caregivers and their families. To locate your county or tribal aging office, consult:
<http://dpi.wi.gov/ec/ecwto.html>

- Books such as Robert Lives With His Grandparents by Martha Whitmore Hickman, and NanaCat and Her Children: Moving In, and/or NanaCat and Her Children: Someone New, can be found at your local library along with many other books.
- University of Wisconsin-Extension offices in every county provide educational resources through classes, publications and web sites. To locate your county UW-Extension office, visit www.uwex.edu/ces/cty.

Some Extension resources to check out are found in Grandparenting Today which lists fact sheets, books, videos, newsletters, web sites and many other sources of information on grandparents raising grandchildren. You can find it on the web at www.uwex.edu/ces/flp/grandparent/index.html.

- Another Extension resource, a publication series titled Through the Eyes of a Child: Grandparents Raising Grandchildren helps grandparents know what to expect and where to turn for support.
www.uwex.edu/relationships

Notes

- ¹U.S. Bureau of the Census (2004). Grandchildren living in the home of their grandparents: 1970 to the present. Retrieved November 7, 2004, from www.census.gov/population/socdemo/hh-fam/tabCH-7.pdf.
- ²Generations United. (2004). Kinship care—Legal options. Retrieved November 10, 2004, from www.gu.org/projg&olegal.htm
- Kleiner, H., Hertzog, J., & Targ, D. B. (1998). Grandparents acting as parents: Background information. Retrieved November 7, 2004. www.uwex.edu/ces/gprg/article.html
- Perez-Porter, M., & Flint, M. M. (2000). Grandparent caregiving: Legal status issues and state policy. In C. B. Cox (Ed.), To grandmother's house we go and stay: Perspectives on custodial grandparents (pp. 132-148). New York: Springer.
- ³Pebley, A. R., & Rudkin, L. L. (1999). Grandparents caring for grandchildren: What do we know? Journal of Family Issues, 20, 218-242.
- ⁴Fields, J. (2003). Children's living arrangements and characteristics: March 2002. Retrieved November 7, 2004, from www.census.gov/prod/2003pubs/p20-547.pdf.
- ⁵Simmons, T., & Dye, J. L., (2003). Grandparents living with grandchildren: 2000. Retrieved November 8, 2004, from www.census.gov/prod/2003pubs/c2kbr-31.pdf.
- ⁶Fields, J. Op. Cit.
- ⁷Casper, L. M., & Bryson, K. R. (1998). Co-resident grandparents and their grandchildren: Grandparent maintained families. Retrieved November 7, 2004, from www.census.gov/population/www/documentation/twps0026/twps0026.html.
- ⁸Fields, J. Op. Cit.
- ⁹Simmons, T., & Dye, J. L. Op. Cit.
- ¹⁰Fields, J. Op. Cit.
- ¹¹Ehrle, J., & Geen, R. (2002). Children cared for by relatives: What services do they need? Retrieved November 10, 2004, from www.urban.org/urlprint.cfm?ID=7772.
- ¹²Ehrle, J., & Geen, R. Op. Cit.
- ¹³Chalfie, D. (1994). Going it alone: A closer look at grandparents parenting grandchildren. Washington, DC: American Association of Retired Persons, Special Activities Department and Women's Initiative.
- Hornby, H., Zeller, D. & Karraker, D. (1994). Kinship care in America: A national policy study. Portland, OR: Edmund S. Muskie Institute of Public Affairs.
- Scarcella, C. A., Ehrle, J., & Geen, R. (2003). Identifying and addressing the needs of children in grandparent care. Retrieved November 7, 2004, from www.urban.org/urlprint.cfm?ID=8561
- ¹⁴Minkler, M., & Fuller-Thomson, E. (1999). The health of grandparents raising grandchildren: Results of a national study. American Journal of Public Health, 89, 1384-1389.
- Solomon, J. C., & Marx, J. (1999). Who cares? Grandparent/grandchild households. Journal of Women & Aging, 11, 3-25.
- ¹⁵Scarcella, C. A. Op. Cit.
- ¹⁶Minkler, M., Fuller-Thomson, E., Miller, D., & Driver, D. (2000). Grandparent caregiving and depression. In B. Hayslip, Jr. & R. Goldberg-Glen (Eds.), Grandparents raising grandchildren: Theoretical, empirical and clinical perspectives (pp. 207-219). New York: Springer.
- ¹⁷Musil, C. M., & Ahmad, M. (2002). Health of grandmothers: A comparison by caregiver status. Journal of Aging and Health, 14, 96-121.
- Waldrop, D., & Weber, J. A. (2001). From grandparent to caregiver: The stress and satisfaction of raising grandchildren. Families in Society: The Journal of Contemporary Human Services, 82, 461-472.
- ¹⁸Jendrek, M. P. (1993). Grandparents who parent their grandchildren: Effects on lifestyle. Journal of Marriage and the Family, 55, 609-621.
- ¹⁹Crumbley, J., & Little, R. L. (1997). Relatives raising children: An overview of kinship care. Washington, DC: CWLA Press.
- Waldrop, D., & Weber, J. A. Op. Cit.
- ²⁰Shore, R. J., & Hayslip, B., (1990, November). Comparisons of custodial and noncustodial grandparents. Paper presented at the Annual Scientific Meeting of The Gerontological Society of America. Boston, MA.
- Shore, R. J., & Hayslip, B. (1994). Custodial grandparenting: Implications for children's development. In A. E. Gottfried & A. W. Gottfried (Eds.), Redefining families: Implications for children's development. New York: Plenum Press.
- ²¹Kinney, J. M., McGrew, K. B., & Nelson I. M. (2003). Grandparent caregivers to children with developmental disabilities: Added challenges. In B. Hayslip, Jr. & J. Hicks Patrick (Eds.), Working with custodial grandparents (pp. 93-109). New York: Springer.
- ²²Waldrop, D., & Weber, J. A. Op. Cit.
- ²²U.S. Bureau of the Census. Op. Cit.
- ²³Simmons, T., & Dye, J. L. Op. Cit.
- ²⁴Jendrek, M. P. Op. Cit.
- ²⁵Burton, L., & de Vries, C. (1992). Challenges and rewards: African American grandparents as surrogate parents. Generations, 51-54.
- ²⁶Bell, W., & Garner, J. (1996). Kinship care. Journal of Gerontological Social Work, 25, 11-20.

Wisconsin Families and the Communities Where They Live and Work: Grandparents Caring for Grandchildren continues the series Wisconsin Families and the Communities Where They Live and Work. The complete list of titles is available on the Family Living web site: www.uwex.edu/ces/flp/demographics © 2006 by the Board of Regents of the University of Wisconsin System.

Authors: Mary Brintnall-Peterson, Ph.D., program specialist in aging, University of Wisconsin–Extension. Dena B. Targ, Ph.D., Professor emerita of child development and family studies, Purdue University.

Reviewers: Marilyn K. Kooiker, UW-Extension Burnett County family living educator and Barbara J. Robinson, aging program specialist with the Wisconsin Department of Health and Family Services Office on Aging.

Produced by Cooperative Extension Publishing, Applied Population Lab and Family Living Programs staff. University of Wisconsin–Extension, U.S. Department of Agriculture and Wisconsin counties cooperating. UW-Extension provides equal opportunities in employment and programming, including title IX and ADA. If you need this material in another format, contact the Office of Equal Opportunity and Diversity programs.

Wisconsin Families and the Communities Where They Live and Work:
Grandparents Caring for Grandchildren

1/09/2006