2006 Wild Rice Conference Vendor and Display Information

Thank you for your interest in attending the 2006 Manoomin Niikaanisag Wild Rice Coalition Building and Conference.

The attendance of agencies, nonprofit organizations, and private vendors is an important part of coalition and awareness building efforts. Agencies and nonprofit organizations provide important information and networks for those interested in maintaining wild rice populations. Similarly, vendors sell products and services that support cultural and ecological uses of wild rice, and management of wild rice habitats. Because of this, vendor booths and display booths are an important and welcomed addition to the Wild Rice Restoration and Preservation Conference.

Conference Attendees

- Natural resource management agencies (federal, state, and tribal)
- Great Lakes tribal communities
- University researchers and educators
- University Extension outreach professionals
