

WI Barn Adaptive Reuse Projects

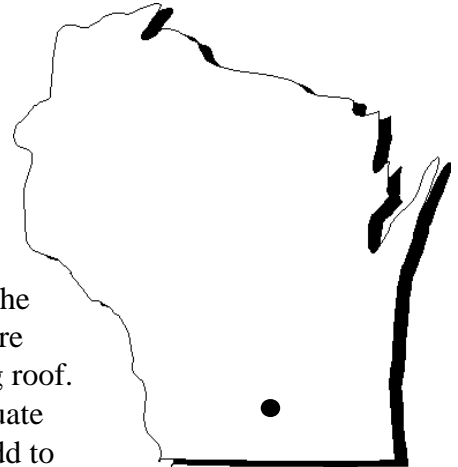

University of Wisconsin- Extension

Present Use: Bar and Restaurant - Quivey's Grove
Type of Barn: Stone Horse Barn originally built in 1855

Owner's/ Contact Person's Name: Craig Kuenning
Address: 6261 Nesbitt Road
Madison, WI 53719

Date of Conversion: 1979-80
Approximate Project Cost(s): NA

Brief Outline of Project: Another former Horse Barn in the Madison area, this barn houses a bar and restaurant. Three other dilapidated barns from elsewhere in the state were taken down and used to construct the bar area and restrooms located to the right of the stone stable. Additional support beams and posts were added on the inside of the structure as needed to support a sagging roof. A new roof was added on top of the original roof to provide adequate insulation. The underside of the original roof was left intact to add to the character of the restaurant. The end of the gable area on the south side of the building was opened up with windows to allow natural light penetration. All of the interior wood floors were replaced.

Success of Project:

Contractors Used: The architect who directed this project is Arlan Kay of Madison. Heiser Builders, Incorporated of Waunakee were the building contractors.

Project Photographs:

